AMERICANS TO LEAD THE FOREIGNERS

YANKEES REPLACE THE BRITISH IN THE FRONT LINE DEFENSES

The Policy of Our Government Is Reversed Suddenly In Far Cathay, the International City of Shanghai, China, Will Be Protected Against the Yellow Mob—Nationalist Cantonese Commander, General Pai, Issues a Defi To Foreign Nations--Will Not Be a Vassal of Other Nations.

Two very highly important developments of American interest in the Chinese situation are reported from London, England, in dispatches to the Daily Express from its Shanghai correspondent, and these are:

1. The American marines will take over the whole sector of the front line defense of the International Settlement.

2. The first American casualty officially reported is J. W. Stranch, of the American destroyer Pittsburgh, wounded by a sniper.

According to the dispatches, the American "devil dogs" will occupy positions now held by the British.

The move, greatly welcomed by the British, upon whom the bulk of the burden defending the international settlement has fallen, is a sudden reversal of the policy of American authorities, as it was announced originally that they were determined to land forces only for the maintenance of internal order and to defend United States nationals and their properties.

The American marines sped out and assisted the British Coldstream guards at the Markham Road bridge, when the Southerners threatened to cross the creek at this point.

Comparative quiet reigned in the Chinese areas of Shanghai after the turbulence of the last two days, while rain, always an effective dampener on Chinese passions, also helped to slacken the fires of incendiaries.

There was renewed sniping in the Northern Chinese districts and desultory fighting between Cantonese and the Shantungese who were retreating from Soochow.

The only other incident worthy of note was a mob demonstration before the British barriers, on the northeast boundary of the International Settlement, a point far removed from the place guarded by the American marine detachment.

Despite the chilling downpour of rain all day long, the Chapel native district, so recently the scene of frightful carnage, conducted a demonstration of welcome to the Nationalists, 50,000 persons participating, and smaller demonstrations were conducted in other Chinese sections.

Many shops were reopened, decreasing the idle to that extent.

A witness who visited the Chapel reported that more than 2,000 houses were destroyed by fire during the riots there Monday and Tuesday. Charred bodies were seen in the ruins, while weeping men and women were stumbling thru them searching for relatives and for their belongings. They had little success in finding their property for looters had carried off what the flames spared.

The American government will use

In a battle fought in B. C. 189, one army filled jars with feathers, set them on fire, and blew the smoke with bellows into the faces of their enemies.

its entire navy if necessary to protect American lives and property in China, the state department has announced.

Regardless of what other Powers do, Americans will remain in China under the fullest protection of their government, it was said emphatically.

Published reports that plans were being made to evacuate Americans from Shanghai and other Chinese towns and leave their property to looting and disorganized armies thus were denied categorically.

It was explained that, while it obviously would be impossible for American forces to penetrate to the remote inland and river towns, those Americans who can be reached may count upon the navy. Where it is possible and there is imminent danger, such as at Nanking, Americans are to be brought to Shanghai, where the American forces are concentrated.

SPORTS WRITER ROBERT READ PASSES AWAY

Columbus, March 24.—Robert W. ("Bob") Read, prominent in Columbus sports circles and for many years sports editor of the Ohio State Journal, died Wednesday at his home, 813 Champion avenue.

Mr. Read's death was due to paralysis, with which he was stricken last fall. For several weeks he remained in a critical condition at Grant Hospital, but finally improved and he was removed to his home where, until Friday, he was believed to be recovering. Following a second stroke, Friday, he became unconscious and continued in a comatose condition until his death.

Mr. Read was born at Delaware and was a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University. For more than 15 years he was sports editor of the Ohio State Journal, resigning about eight years ago to establish a publicity bureau. At one time he was on the staff of the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mr. Read was engaged in publicity work at the time he was stricken last fall. He handled publicity for races, being well versed in racing matters and turf subjects. During the Republican campaign last fall he was in charge of the publicity campaign for Senator Frank B. Willis.

While sports editor of the Ohio State Journal Mr. Read was an official scorer for the American Association and was an authority on baseball subjects. He was president for two terms, 1910 and 1911, of the old Ohio State Baseball League, including teams representing cities in central Ohio.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Cora Colby Read; his mother, Mrs. Mary Read; a brother, Harlan Read, of Okmulgee, Okla., and two sisters, Miss Helen Read and Mrs. Laura Burtsfield of West Lafayette, Ind.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. Friday at the Jones Memorial, East Broad street and Monroe avenue. Services will be conducted by Rev. Ralph E. Davis, pastor of the Broad Street M. E. Church. Burial will be made at Urbana, O. The body may be viewed at the residence.

CONVICT IS INVENTOR OF X-RAY MACHINE

Columbus, March 22.—(UP.)—Genius again has flourished within the walls of the Ohio state penitentiary through the portals of which O. Henry gained fame.

John Boggs, known within the prison as Convict No. 45137 has made his first bid for renown as an inventor, it has been made known.

Boggs has perfected an X-Ray invention said to surpass anything of its character. Through it photographs depict in an incomparable manner bone and tissue details, aiding physicians in giving proper treatment to complicated head fractures and sinus phenomena, officials announced.

Behind the important invention lies the story of a man, stripped of respect, entering the penitentiary with the sneers of the world at his back and the scowl of criminals in his face, who with a smile, accepted his fate.

Three years ago, John Boggs, convicted of murder, was draped in prison denim and assigned to the "pick and shovel" gang under hardened taskmasters.

Guards singled out this man who readily did their bidding, for a commendatory report to Warden Thomas. He was transferred to less strenuous duties.

The slow-ticking prison clock recorded another year and Boggs went to the hospital ward as a trusty. Dr. W. R. Merrill became attached to this man and worked wonders in soothing his co-prisoners. Boggs worked by day and studied by night under the tutelage of Dr. Merrill.

Then the other day he confided to the prison physician that he had worked out a new X-Ray. "Boggs," said Dr. Merrill, "I will give you a chance. We need the equipment. I am grasping at straws. Go to the machine shop and build your device."

When the invention was completed, photographs were taken and physicians were requested to look at them.

"The work of a genius," they said.

"The work of a convict who knew nothing about X-Ray principles until a year ago," replied the prison physician.

Boggs' smile is broadened, but he goes on daily with the routine duties of a prison trusty.

HUMBLE LEMON IS FRIEND INDEED TO PULCHRITUDE

All beauty and health remedies are not necessarily complicated and costly. Indeed, many of them are extremely simple things that are to be found right on the shelves of the pantry rather than of the pharmacy.

One of our best friends in this regard is the homely lemon. Here are just a few of many ways for you to use it to advantage:

As a bleach—Apply lemon juice or rub a freshly cut lemon over the skin, after washing with warm water. Freckles, if not of too long standing, can thus be gradually bleached away.

In manicuring—Use lemon juice to bleach the skin under the nails, and also to remove stains from the fingers.

As an astringent tonic—After cleansing the skin, apply wherever there are large pores. Rinse off with cold water after a few minutes.

As a gargle—A tablespoonful of lemon juice to a glass of hot water. This also makes an excellent mouth wash.

For a cold—A hot lemonade, taken after a hot bath and before going to bed.

For hoarseness—Lemon juice may be added to brown sugar, and the mixture sucked slowly.

For a cough—Equal parts of lemon juice and honey, a teaspoonful to be taken as needed.

For biliousness and nervous headache—A teaspoonful of lemon juice to a cup of hot water. This should be taken, preferably, on an empty stomach.

Wise Maxims

It is a maxim universally agreed upon in agriculture, that nothing must be done too late; and again, that everything must be done at its proper season; while there is a third precept which reminds us that opportunities lost can never be regained.—Pitiny.

NINETY THOUSAND DOLLARS A DAY

Thirty-four million dollars, or more than $90,000 a day, will be the 1927 tax contribution of the gas and electric utility companies of New York State to the cost of government, according to an estimate made by the New York State Committee on Public Utility Information.

The sum of 34 million dollars represents approximately ten per cent of the total gross revenues of the utilities, which was about $46 million dollars in 1926.

The taxes this year, according to the Committee, will equal more than half of the net earnings of the companies.

Of the 34 millions in taxes, two-thirds will go to the city, county and state treasuries, and one-third to the Federal government.

Thirty-four million dollars amounts to more than three dollars apiece for each inhabitant of the State. In 1910 the taxes paid by gas and electric utilities amounted to 55 cents for each inhabitant.

Gas and electric utility tax bills in 1910 equaled 20 per cent of the net earnings of the companies. By 1922 the percentage had risen to 39 per cent of the net earnings. This year it will equal about 60 per cent of the net earnings, it is estimated.

Utility tax rates in New York have been raised at various times, with the result that a larger proportion than ever of the cost of government is being borne by public service companies.

With public ownership of such properties the taxes now paid by private companies would be added to the burden of the general taxpayer, even though he could not use the service of the publicly owned plant which would be tax-exempt. Public ownership does not reduce taxes by eliminating them from one class of property, it simply shifts the obligation to other taxable assets.

The utility taxes paid in other states are proportionately about the same as in New York.—The Manufacturer.

Agnosticism is a doctrine which teaches that we can have no knowledge except that acquired through the senses, which may be called experience, and that we can know nothing of spiritual matters; that in fact, "we know nothing of what may be beyond phenomena." Agnosticism, therefore, leaves no room for the exercise of Christian faith.

It is characteristic of the new wash goods modes for spring that they be endowed with the airs and graces which usually feature the more pretentious silks and woolsens. This season's tubable frocks for morning and porch wear express outstanding modishness. It is the cunning peplum made of a wide bias fold of the material which imparts "style" to this dainty frock in the picture. The new rayon and cotton mixtures are lovely in coloring and design. They launder exquisitely. The silken sheen of the rayon seems to grow more lustrous with each tubbing.

Paris Fashion Notes of Interest to Women

Fashion notes from Paris as reported in the Fashionable Dress Magazine read:

One might say of the color scheme black and reds lead, with black and white showing a keen disposition to overtake them.

The double waistline, especially as Jenny defines it, is much seen. This is oftenest just two belts a few inches apart.

There is a new fashion of running a little tie, not more than a shoe-string across an open neck at the base of the throat.

Yokes are really tremendously important. From simple sports dress to elaborate evening gown, the yoke runs the gamut in its individual way.

Skirts do not become fuller around the hip, only at the hem and they do not lengthen perceptibly.

Perhaps the fan plaiting is to succeed the kick plait.

How Skins Are Used in Coats for Sports Wear

It is not alone the fact that fur coats are much more luxurious and infinitely smarter than they have ever been or that skins never before used for feminine attire are employed in the fashioning of their wraps, that attracts the attention. More than a little interest is attached to the clever and ingenious way in which the skins are put together.

One sees this even in the less expensive coats made of fur suitable for sports wear, and it is more pronounced in wraps which are in the luxury class.

Belts and Necklines Coming to the Front

Belts and necklines are again coming to the front. For a time dresses seemed to be one straight piece, but now the narrow belt is the thing. It is worn rather snug at the hip and gives a slight blouse effect to what Paris terms a "neat" frock.

A square neck in front and a tab yoke in back is the newest of the new concerning the neckline.

The jacket blouse with a narrow belt is the latest thing for sports wear.

Tailored Suit Always Included in Wardrobe

In a season when the fur-trimmed coat or suit is universally worn, a model which depends entirely upon its material and line for chic is of more than passing interest. Every woman who makes any pretense to keeping up with the mode always includes in her wardrobe the suit of tailored aspect. In some cases it is so cleverly cut and so unobtrusive in its details that even in the second year it does not seem out of style.

Elbows Fashionable

Elbows are again fashionable. A considerable number of new coats have buttoned elbows and the attention given the elbow trimmings by dress designers, in all sorts of garments, is a leading point of the latest fashions.

GRAPE JUICE
AND CIDER*Violates Liquor Law and Can be Seized is Recent Federal Court Decision.Householders who do not go down into the cellar and put something in grape juice to keep it from turning into wine are violators of the eighteenth amendment, according to a decision given Wednesday in federal court by Judge Augustus N. Hand, at New York City.He granted an order confiscating 10 barrels of grape juice which chemists said contained 13 per cent alcohol.The ruling, attorneys said, affects the status of farmers who make their own cider and wine which heretofore has been considered immune to seizure.The wine seized belonged to Mrs.
Josephine Malone, who said she'd done nothing but put grape juice in barrels in her cellar.Her attorney, Al Rosenberg, argued that it was legal to prepare grape juice for home consumption and that confiscation was irregular unless it were proved that the wine was intoxicating in fact.Quoting section 29, title 2, of the national prohibition act, Judge Hand read:The penalties provided in this act against the manufacture of liquor without a permit shall not apply to a person who manufactures nonintoxi-cating cider and fruit juices shall not be sold or delivered except to persons who have permits to manufacture vinegar."He then declared:
"I can hardly regard grape juice containing 13 per cent of alcohol as nonintoxicating."Possession of grape juice for home use, which was nonintoxicating when manufactured by the possessor, becomes unlawful under the act whenever the liquor becomes intoxicating, wrether thru natural fermentation or otherwise."The section of the act on which Judge Hand's ruling was based is that invoked by Congressman Hill of Maryland when he fermented wine and defied arrest on the ground that the wine could not be declared intoxicating in fact until someone became intoxicated by drinking it.CORN BORER

HE HAD been serious of mood during most of the evening, but she did not mind; under even his dark moods ran a golden undercurrent of fun that broke through once in awhile, and at all times she had a quiet feeling of happiness and contentment when she was with him.He bent his dark, curly head forward. "Helen, I have a chance to buy that new corner store—first payment $1,500. If I could get it, and it went, it would mean making our dream come true. But where to get the $1,500 is the trouble.""I know, Phil, of course. There is the $2,000 father left me," she said eagerly. "You take it, do!"His eyes were sober. "Sweetheart, I knew you would say that, and I love you for it. But if I should put it in the business and then lose it, I should never forgive myself.""I would not care—and besides you wouldn't lose it.""I've tried in a number of places to borrow the money, but each chap says it's too much of a gamble, and of course I have no security."After he had gone that evening, she lingered in the room where he had been, musing and dreaming and planning; and finally, after some doubting and hesitating, she made up her mind what to do.The next day, she sought the office of the old lawyer who in days gone-by had been friendly with her father.
He listened to her plan, and then shook his head."Hal is a mighty fine chap, but he's got a stiff proposition making that store go. People have been buying elsewhere, and it's hard to make folks change," he said."I love him enough to lose the money gladly," she replied quietly.
"All you have to do is to advance it to him and say nothing."He mused a moment. "I will do it, then. I rather like the idea of being a party to this little love plot and I hope Hal wins out."

That night Hal was jubilant.

"Brown Eyes, what do you think?
Old Cressley came in, smoothed his whiskers two or three times, hemmed and hawed, and offered me enough to purchase the store!" he exclaimed. "So it is all fixed—and watch me work! It's a golden chance! And now where are those house plans—let's talk them over!"She kissed him when she brought them. That was her and his dream
—a house of their own; and now, perhaps, it might come true.He drew her close to him as he sifted the plans in his strong, capable-looking fingers."It may, never come, Honey, but I've got the habit of dreaming about you and for you, and I like it!"The store was opened, and to Hal's astonishment and her's, business mounted the first day. At the end of the week the success of the store was assured. Coming once, perhaps out of mere curiosity, customers came again.Hal was surprised at his success, but she knew one of the reasons; his cheery, happy personality that radiated an atmosphere inviting to customers and largely absent in the old store that was the nearest competitor.Then a little shadow gathered on the horizon of her happiness and began to spread. His visits became few, and he seemed to be preoccupied and absent-minded. Then the old lawyer, three months later, called her into his office and told her that Hal had asked for an extension of time on the loan although he offered to pay the loan then if he had to.Mr. Cressley suddenly paused and looked out of the window. "I don't know just what is wrong, for he has been doing a thriving business.
He wants the money for something else. I might as well tell you; a very attractively dressed young woman has been taking him out in her car. There she is now."Helen went to the window, something cold creeping about her heart.
She saw Hal come from the store and drive off with the girl. When she turned from the window, however, she was calm, and while the veteran lawyer looked at her sadly, she quietly directed him to advance
Hal all the time he wanted.It was when she was in the silence of her own room that she surrendered to her fear. He was so attractive—how well she knew! And he had found excuses for not coming to see her.A motor horn sounded outside. She looked out and saw Hal in his delivery truck. He beckoned, and she went down, to find him excited over something. He drew her into the truck seat beside him."I've got to get back to the store—but I must show you something!"
he said as the car shot away.They drove through the streets toward the more open sections. He stopped and pointed to a little house that smiled down cheerily at them."There she is, sweetheart. You see, I know what you wanted, and I had a woman decorator come from the city. It isn't paid for, but, believe me, it's going to be. Let's go up for a second! Why—Honey, what's the trouble?""I'll tell you up there," she whispered. "But it isn't trouble—it's happiness!"SNAKE BITE TOLL

COMPULSORY INSURANCE IS NOT PRACTICAL

Proposal for compulsory liability insurance are being met with organized resistance on the basis of common sense and appreciation of practical business methods.

Chairman H. H. Rice of the Legislative Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, commenting on the recent rejection of such a proposal in Ohio, said:

"While we believe that many who are fostering compulsory insurance are sincere, when one analyzes the problem, its difficulties immediately become apparent. Insuring a driver against financial penalty is likely in many cases to increase his carelessness in operating a machine, and accordingly have just the opposite effect from the protection which such measures aim to give.

"The large amount of notice which the compulsory idea has attracted this year, is already arousing the public to a declaration of sentiment against the proposal. Compulsory insurance is typical of that impractical attitude of mind which thinks that anything can be remedied by a law."—The Manufacturer.

FIND BODY OF MRS. HOUCK

Washington, March 24.—(UP.)—The Anacosta River today yielded up the body of Mrs. Gladys Houck, wife of Dr. Knute M. Houck, local psychiatrist, thereby solving at least partially the mystery of the woman's disappearance which came to light when her husband was found, talking incoherently, at Hornell, N. Y., several months ago.

One side of the woman's head was crushed, and the neck appeared broken, though whether these wounds were inflicted before death was uncertain. Authorities said the body may have been struck by a boat during the winter.

Houck, released recently, is understood to be now at Madison, Wis.

Port Only a Memory

Coffee was originally shipped from the port of Mocha, to which it owes the name "Mocha." But for about 200 years nothing has been shipped from that port, which has been closed by drifting sand. This name, however, has clung ever since to a certain kind of high-grade coffee. Abyssinia now ships a grade of Mocha, and much of that kind of coffee is shipped from Aden, Arabia.

AMUSEMENTS

If motion picture audiences need any further proof that Bebe Daniels is the screen's outstanding comedienne, they have it at the Met theater where Paramount's latest, "A Kiss in a Taxi" is being shown.

"A Kiss in a Taxi" is French farce, crisp, delicious, rapid in action, filled to the brim with laughter and played by a skillful cast. As Ginette, alluring waitress of the Cafe Pierre, the dark-eyed star presents one of the best characterizations of her career. Brilliant support is accorded by Chester Conklin, Douglas Gilmore, her new leading man, Jocelyn Lee, Henry Kolker and Richard Tucker. Clarence Badger, the man who directed Bebe in "Miss Brewster's Millions" and "The Campus Flirt," handled the megaphone for "A Kiss in a Taxi,"—a fact that should prove sufficient to make you want to see it.

Altho essentially comic, the picture is not devoid of thrills. In an opening sequence, a taxi is driven thru a crowded cafe, hurtling from one wall to the other. This brief action represents one of the most exciting bits of screen photography ever recorded. "A Kiss in a Taxi" contains comedy with a kick.

LODGE INSPECTION

A successful inspection of Pickaway lodge, No. 23, F. & A. M., was held Wednesday evening. It was one of the largest and best meeting ever held by Pickaway lodge.

The Master Mason degree was exemplified in a most impressive manner on two candidates who were brothers of the worshipful master.

The inspecting officer was Coleman Ernest Hill, of Williamsport, district lecturer of this the eighth Masonic district, who complimented the worshipful Master Gale Watts and all the subordinate officers on the excellence of their work.

A splendid dinner was served in the banquet room and the red room by the ladies of the order of the Eastern Star and was thoroughly enjoyed by the 165 banqueters.

Visitors were present from Columbus, Cincinnati, Chillicothe, Ironton, Logan, Mt. Sterling, Wapakoneta, New Holland, Williamsport, Amanda, Kingston, Adelphi, Lockbourne, Granville, Johnstown and Summitville, Indiana.

After the district lecturer had concluded his report a number of the visiting brothers made inspiring talks which were thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Master of Mockery

The mocking bird belongs to the thrush family of North America. Its natural song is most melodious, but it has in addition a marvelous imitative faculty, being capable of imitating almost any sound, so as to deceive even the most attentive and trained ear.

AMANDA PAVING

As soon as the weather permits work will begin on the paving of Main street in Amanda which is to be made of brick and will extend from the concrete pike east to the west corporation line.

Work has already begun on one of the intersecting streets but the main street has not yet been closed. However, brick has been hauled to the town ready for the work to begin.

W. H. Ringwald, of Chillicothe, is the contractor on the job.

Well to Remember

The first day a man is a guest, the second a burden, the third a pest.—

Native American

Muskies are purely North American animals. Their long scaly tails, flattened vertically, act as rudders when the stocky animals are in the water, says Nature Magazine. There is little danger of extermination at present, though their fur has been extensively used under various trade names. The average length is 21 inches, weight two pounds.

Lesson for March 27REVIEW—STUDIES IN THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

GOLDEN TEXT—If ye love Me keep My commandments.—John 14:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—What Jesus Wants Us to Do.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Christian Way of Living.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Be a Christian.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Marks of a True Christian.

The following methods of review are suggested:

I. A Descriptive Essay Method.

Each member of the class should be assigned to the task a week ahead of the preparation of an essay on the topics involved in the quarterly lessons, as for example: What constitutes a true Christian. Following Christ. The prayer life of a Christian. The Christian and his Bible. The home life of a Christian. Christian stewardship. The Christian and the missionary obligation.

II. The Question Review Method.

The teacher will prepare a list of questions dealing with the various phases of the quarter's lessons. These will be written on slips of paper and the members of the class will draw them. As examples of questions note the following: What does following Christ involve? What is the Christian's responsibility as to his Bible? What is the Christian's obligation as to stewardship? What are the duties of the members of the home? What is the Christian's obligation as to the evangelization of the world? What is the Christian's hope? Is Christ coming again? Will there be a resurrection of the body?

III. The Summary Method.

This method can always be used to good advantage with the advanced classes. The outstanding fact or facts should be grasped and the principal teaching of the quarter's lessons stated. Suggestions:

Lesson for January 2.

Jesus first calls men to be His disciples. He then calls them to have fellowship in His service. Those who receive this two-fold call will walk as He walked.

Lesson for January 9.

The one who really follows Christ shall be hated and opposed. Having fellowship with Christ, he will love his enemies, do good to those who hate him, bless them that curse him, pray for those which spitefully use him.

Lesson for January 16.

The Bible furnishes the Christian with full knowledge of God and man's obligation to Him. The only way to be able to stand firm and true in the coming perilous times is to be thoroughly grounded in the knowledge of the Scriptures.

Lesson for January 23.

Jesus, though divine, resorted much to prayer. If he needed this fellowship, how much more do His followers need it.

Lesson for January 30.

Followers of Jesus may expect temptations, but divine help is available for every need.

Lesson for February 6.

To every believer has been given certain talents such as gifts for service, knowledge, time, money, to be used for the honor of His Lord. A time of reckoning is coming at which reward will be given for fidelity, and judgment meted out for infidelity.

Lesson for February 13.

The home is the oldest and most important institution in the world. The most effective way of making strong and pure the church, society and the nation is to make the home Christian.

Lesson for February 20.

The subject of the kingdom is under solemn obligation to permeate society and let his light shine so that the heavenly father may be glorified.

Lesson for February 27.

Every believer has two natures—the flesh and the spirit. The only way to overcome the flesh is to be filled with the Spirit.

Lesson for March 6.

The Lord permitted persecution to fall upon the church to cause the disciples to be scattered in order for the widening of the testimony.

Lesson for March 13.

Christ has imposed upon every disciple the obligation of witnessing for Him to all the nations of the world.

Lesson for March 20.

The Christian's hope is the personal return of Jesus Christ to take him to His heavenly home. When Christ comes, the body of the believer who has fallen asleep will be resurrected and living believers will be caught up into glory with Christ.

Harder to Do Right

There never has been an age where it was not harder to do right than to do wrong, just as there has never been a time when it was not harder to swim upstream than down.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

Let Your Light Shine

A light under a bushel, besides being hid, will go out in a short time for want of air. Unless our lights shine for others, they will soon perish in ourselves.—Herald of Gospel Liberty.

CIRCLEVILLE CLUB WOMEN HONORED

The Circleville women of the Women's Republican Club of Ohio have been singularly honored by the selection by Miss Marie Bawn, musical director for the club who has asked Miss Abbe Mills Clarke and Miss Helen Marion of this city, to take part in a miscellaneous program, May 5th. Miss Clark will play "Country Garden" by Percy Grainger and Miss Marion will sing "Spring's Awakening" by Sanderson, which was the solo on which she was awarded first prize at the Eisteddfod in Jackson last October. She will also sing "The Blackbird's Song" by Scott.

This program will be quaint and interesting as the club will welcome about 300 new members.

Added to the already numerous members from this city are Miss Nell Weldon, Mrs. Edna Cooper and Mrs. A. J. Lyle who are sponsored by Mrs. Jay Wall.

Increasing danger, because of the growing number of automobiles, to Salvation Army workers who hold meetings in the street, was brought out recently following the felling by a motor car of seven women members of the Bradford (England) barracks. REMOVE METAL NOTIONS FROM WOMAN'S STOMACH

Surgeons Find 280 Pins and Needles Rolled Into Ball Hanging in Abdomen.

Newark, N. J.—Ten ounces of metal notions, composed of 280 safety pins, straight pins and needles, formed into a ball, were removed from the stomach of Mrs. Margaret Barry, thirty-five years old.
Mrs. Barry, who speaks no English, said that before she came to America she worked in Europe as a nursemaid. Her employers did not feed her enough to satisfy her appetite. In her mouth she always carried two or three pins or a needle. If a morsel of unguarded food came her way, she would gulp it down before the master or mistress caught her and had her beaten. With the food, unnoticed in the excitement, a pin or needle would slip down without pain. Two of the straight pins had penetrated the walls of the patient's stomach, according to Drs. George Blackburn, Louis Davis and Harry Seldman, who performed the operation on Mrs. Barry at St. Michael's hospital, after an X-ray, and were hanging into the abdominal cavity until drawn out. Parts of the ball, Doctor Blackburn said, were in various degrees of corrosion, although, he added, no poison had been communicated to the walls of the stomach.
According to the doctors, the ball of needles was compact and the size of a baseball. They expressed wonder that the patient had not died from blood poisoning or peritonitis, and were surprised at her improved condition immediately after the operation.

Monoxide Gas Fails as Rat Exterminator

Omaha, Neb.—Monoxide gas may be dangerous for human beings, but as a rat exterminator it is worthless, take it from Charles Kranda, gentleman farmer.
Kranda, who operates a ten-acre farm as a side line near here, recently caught four mammoth rats which had been bothering his chickens. Looking around for a humane way to kill them he thought of the monoxide gas method.
Tying a sack around three sides of the trap, he hung it on the exhaust pipe of his automobile, closed his garage tightly and turned on the motor. He left the motor of his car run for half an hour. At the end of that time Kranda threw open the garage door, shut off the engine and prepared to bury the dead rats.
When he approached the cage he found they were very much alive. They tried to break out of the cage and get at him and so ferocious were their actions that Kranda's German police dog became alarmed and beat a hasty retreat.

Theater Thief Trapped; Exits Are All Locked

Budapest.—It isn't safe to rob the dressing room of a Budapest theater while a performance is in progress, a thief, who recently did so, has learned to his sorrow.
During a recent performance in the King theater the burglar entered the dressing room of Jeno Nador, one of the city's most popular actors. On returning to the room between the acts Nador discovered the theft. At once he informed the director, who ordered that exits of the theater be closed. Then he announced the theft to the audience and asked each individual to look around him and to call the attention of an usher to all large bundles in the possession of his neighbors.
Within a short time the thief was discovered. At once those nearby began to mob him. In all probability he would have been killed if a large detachment of police who had been summoned to the theater had not arrived at this moment.

This Apple Creates Their Garden of Eden

New York.—Another story of a man, a girl and an apple—but with a happier ending than the famous original—has come to light.
Three years ago Patrolman Boylan, walking post in Second avenue, exercised his policeman's prerogative as he passed a fruit stand.
"Say, how do you get that way?" inquired the pert black-eyed miss of seventeen, in charge of the display. "Do you think apples grow on trees?" "Don't get excited," retorted Boylan. "I'm going to pay you for it. Here's a nickel."
"Go on! I was only fooling. Of course you can have an apple. Take a lot. Take two."
The other afternoon, at four o'clock, beneath a bower of apple blossoms, Patrolman Boylan and Miss Antoinette Ferrari of Jackson Heights, Queens, were married in quaint little St. Joan of Arc's church, Jackson Heights.

Blue Canaries at the Crystal Palace

London.—Blue canaries were exhibited at this year's national cage bird show at the Crystal palace. Another novelty was a fawn canary, claimed to be the only specimen of its kind in the world.
Many of the exhibits, including the blue budgerigars known as love birds, which are valued at £150 a pair, were brought to London in special cars, as a precaution against the cold. There were 4,000 birds on view from many parts of the world.

WILDERNESS

Areas Can Still Be Found in National Forests.

The day of the "great wide open spaces" is not yet past, nor is it in any immediate danger of passing, according to the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture.
Consternation on the part of many nature lovers and outdoor enthusiasts over the invasion of forest areas by highways and summer resorts led the Forest Service to undertake a study to determine just how much of the areas of the National Forests could still be classed as wilderness. The results showed that approximately one-third of the gross acreage of the National Forests is still sufficiently "untamed" to come under that class, and that here are large areas which are in no immediate danger of the encroachment of gasoline fumes, bathtubs and other marks of civilization.
In making its study of the wilderness areas, the Forest Service adopted the widest possible margin of safety to minimize the possibility that some person might lay a finger on a part of the map classed as wilderness and assert that he had driven his automobile to that point. The minimum size of a real "wilderness" area was taken as comprising 10 townships, 360 square miles, or 230,000 acres. It was determined that at present there are 74 areas, ranging from 360 to 10,859 square miles in extent, which, so far as can be determined, are without roads. The grand total area is 85,750 square miles, or an average of 1,159 square miles per area. If the proposed Forest Road System, as at present planned on paper, were 100 per cent completed, there would still be 61 areas ranging in extent from 360 square miles to 5,000 square miles, with a total area of 52,920 roadless square miles, and an average of 868 sections per area. These figures are exclusive of Alaska.
"The situation is not so bad as some had feared," says L. F. Kneipp of the Forest Service. "At present one-third of the gross acreage of the National Forests, exclusive of Alaska, is in roadless areas of more than 230,000 acres in extent. After all the roads our field officers have planned to date have been constructed, there will be approximately one-fifth of the gross area of National Forests in roadless areas of 10 townships or more."

Happy Old Times

The Good Old Days were the ones in which molasses came in a barrel and a case of mayonnaise lasted the ordinary grocer three years.—Mansfield (Ohio) Journal.

Just about the time a maiden lady is sure she has a fellow on the string, some snippy young flapper comes along and cuts the string.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices.

Suit For Divorce

Mrs. Dorothy Conklin Dunkle has filed a suit for divorce in probate court against Ralph Joseph Dunkle. The parties were married at Vanceburg, Kentucky, November 24, 1926. She charges her husband with gross neglect, failure to provide and adultery. She asks to be restored to her maiden name, Dorothy Conklin Baum. The plaintiff is the owner of a farm of 160 acres in Madison township and she asks the court to debar defendant from all rights of dower therein. Charles Gerhardt represents the plaintiff.

Suit For Alimony.

Hannah Moss has filed a suit for alimony against John Moss in probate court. The parties were married May 2, 1923. She charges her husband with gross neglect and asks that she be allowed alimony for the support of herself. She claims that the defendant owns a house and lot in Lovers' Lane, and also has deposits in the Circleville Savings and Banking company and also money in a Chillicothe bank, and asks the court to restrain him from drawing out these accounts or disposing of his property until this suit has been disposed of. The restraining order has been granted. C. A. Weldon represents the plaintiff.

Must Pay Alimony.

The supreme court refused to review the alimony case of Clara Iles against John Iles. The lower court ordered the plaintiff to pay the defendant $3 a month alimony and this she will have to pay. She originally brought suit for divorce and a counter suit and answer was made by the defendant. John Pettit, of Logan, represented the defendant.

Critic's Report Miss Wilson

The senior class have received their invitations for graduation. They are very proud of them and expect a present. Watch your chance boys, for we have some good looking seniors.

Miss Wilson has started the rehearsals of the senior class play, "Clarence Decides." It is progressing very nicely and it is expected to be a great success.

Last Friday, March 18, at about 5 o'clock, some of the agriculture boys and Mr. Grice, started to Springfield to visit the Buckeye Incubator and Brooder Manufacturing company and from there to Columbus that evening. Then on Saturday morning they visited the David Davies Packing house. All reported to have been benefitted by the trip. They arrived home about 5 o'clock Saturday.

Unpaying Proposition

Revenge is like a boomerang. Although for a time it flies in the direction in which it is hurled, it takes a sudden curve, and, returning, hits your own head the heaviest blow of all.—Exchange.

Sometimes when a crook is set free you can't help feeling that he was tried by a jury of his peers—as the law requires.

MAINTAIN LARGE SNAKE VILLAGE

Venom Extracted for Serum to Cure Bites.

Boston, Mass.—Harvard university, the United States and the United Fruit company are co-operating through the Antivenin Institute of America to maintain "the largest and most modern snake village in the world" in a war against snake poisoning.

The village, which has a capacity of 5,000 scaly inhabitants, is at Tela, Honduras. Dr. Afranio do Amaral of Brazil is director. He recently made a flying trip from Central America to lecture before the Harvard school of public health.

The village is a concrete-walled inclosure, roofed with palm leaves, and containing 16 houses divided into three apartments each with two shallow drinking basins.

There the venom is extracted from the captives and shipped to Glenolden, Pa., where horses are gradually inoculated with it. Their immunized blood makes a serum which is used to protect human life from the venom of snake bites.

The yellow chin, or fer-de-lance, is the most common of the dangerous snakes of that section. There is also the eyelash snake, or horned viper; the cascabela rattler, and the coral snake.

The institute also has a station at San Antonio, Texas, which is aided by the army, and this station captured 4,000 rattlesnakes in a four-month period last fall. Seventy-two bites were reported to the station in a three-month period, and twenty-six of those bitten were given the serum. None of these died, but 85 per cent of those not treated died.

The principles of antivenin treatment were developed by the state of Sao Paulo, Brazil. There the antivenin is distributed to the farmers, but Doctor Amaral believes the best means of distribution here is through the drug stores. In Brazil hunters or cattle riders in snake-infested territory may obtain small syringes containing the serum.

Kills Himself When Told

by Son to Drop German

Los Angeles, Calif.—Herman F. Bestmann, Sr., seventy-six years old, once a wealthy tavernkeeper in Germany, who came here to live with his son after the vicissitudes of the World war had wiped out his fortune, chose death by his own hand because he could not fit into his new surroundings. His lifeless body was found late in the day, suspended by a piece of hemp fastened over a door in his room.

"What you told me drives me to my death. You are my murderer," read a note addressed to his son.

The son, Herman F. Bestmann, Jr., a contractor, told police that he had objected to the use of German in his home. When the father came here, he brought along his young wife. She was his fourth.

"In my father's presence I ordered my stepmother not to bring German friends into the house, and further admonished her that English should be spoken, as my wife does not understand German," the son explained.

Armless Sydney Girl Is Clever With Her Toes

Sydney.—A fifteen-year-old Sydney girl is a wonderful example of the triumph of human perseverance and will power over physical misfortune. Crippled from birth and robbed of the use of both hands and arms, she has learned to write more legibly than the average person and perform other things with her toes.

For writing, the girl holds the pen or pencil between the first two toes of her right foot and steadies the pad with her left. Her "hand" is neater and more easily read than over 80 per cent of hundreds of normal writers taken at random from schools and offices.

In addition, the girl paints, stencils, knits and does all kinds of sewing with her feet. She can thread a needle with them.

Thatched Roofs May Disappear in Scotland

Edinburgh.—Thousands of the thatched roofed cottages of Scotland will become but a memory under a burgh bill which the government plans to introduce next session in the British parliament.

The bill is aimed at all roofs covered with combustible materials. Failure to replace the covering with incombustibles within a month after the bill's adoption would mean a fine of £5.
